Intercultural Group Dynamics

Activity 2 Understanding Intercultural Incidents
Programme of this module

- Icebreaker activity
- Programme and intended learning outcomes
- Creating student groups
  - Facilitating intercultural group dynamics
- Creating a learning environment that supports intercultural engagement in a group setting
- Wrapping up activity
Purpose of activity 2

• Discuss a framework for understanding cultural variation and difference: the high–low context continuum (Hall & Reed Hall, 1989).

• Analyse the impact of cultural difference on interaction in the international classroom using the high–low context continuum.
A Cultural Lens

Cultures differ in the extent to which context is considered an important element in the communication between its members.

In the literature, this is referred to as the

High–Low Context Continuum

High context cultures

Societies or groups in which members are closely connected over a long period of time.

Context understanding: many aspects of cultural behaviour are not made explicit. Cultural values and norms are handed down through the generations.

Information is available in the context for those who belong to the group and are sensitive to it.

Low context cultures

Societies or groups in which people are loosely connected and tend to have many connections but of a shorter duration or for some specific reason.

Verbal understanding: in order to function appropriately and effectively, cultural values, beliefs and behaviours are spelled out explicitly.

Information tends to be segmented and formalised in detailed writing. It is shared on a “need to know” basis.

General patterns of Behaviour

High Context cultures
• Affiliation to family and community, loyalty
• Context provides many covert, implicit messages
• Focus on non-verbal communication; sensitive to body language
• Shame: personal acceptance of failure
• Relationship focus, collaboration
• Hides emotions

Low Context cultures
• Many connections, fragile functional bonds, privacy
• Overt, explicit messages, simple and to the point
• Focus on verbal communication; less sensitive to body language
• Guilt: blame of others for failure
• Task focus, competition
• Shows emotions

Instruction: case study

Individually
• Read the case study to understand the situation presented;
• Analyse the intercultural issues in the case by using the High–Low Context Continuum provided in the handout;
• Write your answers to the questions on your individual sheet.

In your group
• Discuss the answers to the questions and
• Prepare a flip chart with the key (intercultural) challenges this group has presented.

Plenary session
• Share the results from discussion in your groups

(Intercultural) Group Work

Top 10 Challenges identified by Turner (2009):

1. Unequal language skills
2. Quietness or silence
3. Leadership or role ambiguity
4. Communication issues
5. Conflict
6. Unequal commitment to the group
7. Time keeping or punctuality
8. Free riders or lack of participation
9. Differing expectations of groups
10. Over-talking or interrupting

Value of the exercise

Reflection

• What was the impact of taking an intercultural perspective?
• What factors were you not originally thinking about that were highlighted by the High–Low Context Continuum?
• What was the impact of discussing this with someone else?
• What else did you learn through this process?
• What does it take to work effectively with this tool?
• How can the tool be useful to you moving forward?
